to a double track in Louisiana Street, where the roadway is too narrow for two tracks. Mr Leonard, a signer of the petition, was now of opinion that the Garber route served a larger number of people. Henry Garber, who had prepared maps for the Williamsburg Avenue route, claimed that it put every one in four blocks of a car line.

Must Build it Their Way. large delegation of men, women and children from the neighborhood of the National Cemetery in the coun-ty, were utterly indifferent as to the way the cars went up Fulton Hill. They wanted a car line, and all routes lead to their section. Several women pres-ent said that General Manager Bailey, of the Richmond and Henrico Company, had stated that unless allowed to go the way now planned—the Nelsen route—his company will not build at all. Walking is bad in their section they are a mile and a half from the car line-and irrespective of the property interests of Alderman Nelsen and Mr. Garber, they hoped the committee would give the company whatever it wanted, so long as it would build the line—they were in favor of any route the company would build.

Mr. Hodges, a member of the City Democratic Committee, said that no one believed that Fulton Hill line would be a paying proposition—that everybody knew how and why the company was being forced to build it. He did not blame either Mr. Nelsen or Mr. Garber for wanting the best end of it, but the people needed the street car service, and the line up Louisiana Street was the most direct, and would not hurt anybody. "If they say they won't run it any other way, then for Heaven's sake let them run it there," he concluded.

Big Crowd at City Hall,

Between the delegations from the East End demanding car service at any price, and from the West End prepared to resist the multiplication of tracks to the last ditch, the City Hall was orowded as it has not been in years, people packing the corridors, staircases people packing the corridors, staircases and antercoms, some of those who came to speak not being able to enter the Council chamber. Mr. Taylor, for the Lee District Committee, announced that his people would be on hand on Tuesday afternoon, and at each succeeding meeting of the committee and of the Council, until assured beyond any chance of reverse that their home section would not be invaded by unwelcome car lines.
